

SCHEME TO GET WISCONSIN HERE.

Planning for California Trip and May Play in Salt Lake.

HOPES OF MANAGER RISER.

University Team May Have a Chance To Play Last Year's Champions—Boys in Eastern Leagues.

If the scheme that Manager Riser of the University football team is nursing just now, materialists, lovers of football hereabouts will have a chance to witness one of the best teams in the country do a few things with the pig skin on a local gridiron.

Manager Riser has heard that the Wisconsin eleven is framing up a trip to the coast this season, and is making efforts to get the team to stop off in Salt Lake long enough for a game. Whether the Wisconsin crowd comes or stay home depends entirely upon the decision of the faculty. If the answer is "yes" they come, if "nay" they stay.

It is their scheme to play the University of California on Christmas day and then play the Leland Stanford team on New Year's day.

The boys here are enthusiastic over the prospects of a whirl with the husky crowd from the east as they believe it would do them much good.

Manager Riser is now in communication with the manager of the Wisconsin team to the fifth round but he lacked the staying of his younger antagonist.

CLIFFORD WINS AGAIN.

Knocked Out Dal Hawkins in the Seventh Round.

Butte, Mont., Sept. 18.—Dal Hawkins of San Francisco was knocked out by Jack Clifford by a short arm right hook to the jaw in the seventh round. The fight apparently was Hawkins' up to the fifth round but he lacked the staying of his younger antagonist.

GUN CLUB SHOOT.

Eight Members Participated in a Contest Yesterday Afternoon.

Eight members of the Salt Lake Gun club journeyed down to the traps yesterday to indulge in a little contest at shooting at blue birds. A number of good scores were made, but J. F. ## ANOTHER TEAM ORGANIZED.

Salt Lake Business College Will Have an Eleven.

Members of the Salt Lake Business college want it understood that their intention is to represent the college in the gridiron this season with a good team of the skin chasers. The team averages 150 pounds and they are ready to meet any team of that weight in the city. Those who desire to accept the captain may communicate with R. Hassard, center and manager of the 11. Following is the line up of the team as it now stands: J. Mulvey, left guard; I. Ryan, right tackle; C. Foster, right tackle; R. McGee, right end; L. Coulson, center; T. Hassard, right halfback; R. Whitbeck, left halfback; A. Gardiner, fullback; C. Hill, quarterback.

Building of Shamrock 8.

London, Sept. 18.—Confirming the dispatches of the Associated Press on the subject, the Yachting world today says:

All the plans for building the Shamrock III are in a forward state, and it is certain that she will be ready for launching much earlier than either of Sir Thomas Lipton's previous challengers. The mild steel for the plating will be specially manufactured with the view of securing minimum weight and maximum strength and reliability. Although in this respect she is a costly vessel she will not be spared, no expense will be spared which will in any way increase her chances of success.

On the highest authority the Associated Press is able to say that there is no truth in the report published in the United States by a news agency yesterday that Sir Thomas Lipton's challenge for the America's cup will consist of a five-line note, ending with Sir Thomas's expression of his "entire satisfaction" in all respects with the admirable arrangements of the New York Yacht club on past occasions.

The Kind to Catch.

Leader, Wyo., Sept. 18.—(Special).—The largest trout caught with hook and line in this section this season was a few days ago by Horace Rhein, the 10-year-old son of W. H. Rhein. The lad was fishing in Little Pool Ariz with a green willow pole and when the trout took the bait the pole snapped. Young Rhein was determined to land the fish, however, and triced him to the shore, caught the catch on shore. The trout weighed six pounds and was 22 inches in length and 12 inches in circumference.—Denver Reg. publication.

Her Long Lost Brother.

Now a wealthy New York woman whose name was Rothwell is claiming that "young" Corbett, whose real name is William Rothwell, is her long-lost brother and is trying to prove the relationship.

The name of the woman in question is Mrs. J. J. J. of 405 West Fifty-sixth street, New York City. While the she wrote to him was still in Denver and asked Corbett to call on her when he came to New York. This the young champion did and tried to convince the woman that she was laboring under a delusion and that all the children of his father had been accounted for. Mrs. Rothwell told him how her brother disappeared from home some years ago.

EVERY CHILD BORN INTO THE WORLD with an inherited tendency to distressing, disfiguring humours of the skin, scalp, and blood, becomes an object of the most tender solicitude, not only because of its suffering but because of the dreadful fear that the disfigurement is to be lifelong and mar its future happiness and prosperity. Hence it becomes the duty of mothers of such afflicted children to acquaint themselves with the best, the purest, and most effective treatment available, viz., THE CUTICURA TREATMENT.

Warm baths with CUTICURA SOAP, to cleanse the skin of crusts and scales and soften the thickened cuticle, gentle anointings with CUTICURA OINTMENT, to instantly allay itching, irritation, and inflammation, and soothe and heal, are all that can be desired for the alleviation of the suffering of skin-tormented infants and children and the comfort of worn-out, worried mothers. A single set is often sufficient to cure when the best physicians fail.

and said that he resembled the lost one very much.

Young Corbett thinks she may indeed be a distant relative, but is not worrying himself much over the fact. The other day he received a letter from the woman who desires to claim kinship, and in it was a four leaf clover, being the expression of a wish for the success of the champion in his coming battle.

LOST AFTER WINNING.

Story of a Negro Fighter Who Whipped Himself in a Bout.

"It is often the unexpected happens in a prize fight," said a veteran sportsping man the other day. "The chance blow and the 'hit me now' proposition are frequent occurrences, but the most ridiculous termination of a prize fight ever saw, or even heard of, was right here in New Orleans. It was a fight between a pair of lightweight negroes, and each had a considerable following. Brown, a city fighter, was always favorite over Jenkins, with whom he was matched. I will never forget the meeting. It was in a weird tumble-down old place with rough wooden benches, built in shabby tiers about a 20 foot ring. The posts of the ring were heavy cedar affairs, not even stripped of their bark, and with several ugly looking, stubby knots adorning every surface. The place was lighted with smoky kerosene lamps, and was reeking with tobacco smoke and perspiration. The 'pious' 'Fives' and the first sound it was all Brown. He fairly smothered Jenkins in every round, and at the end of the first round his backers were shrieking for Jenkins to have his chances, with few takers. Jenkins, however, managed to stay on his feet for three rounds. In the third he was on the ground when the going he carried the end of the round. He was carried to his corner by his dusky seconds and propped up in his chair. His eyes were closed and both arms and legs were limp and useless.

"By dint of heroic treatment and copious doses of whiskey that would eat paint off an iron fence, he was restored to shape that morning, his standing up which the ring sounded a resumption of hostilities. In the meantime Brown had disclaimed any of the attentions of his seconds, and had even lighted a cigar during the two-minute rest. As the song sounded he sauntered to the middle of the ring and gave a very praiseworthy exhibition of buck and wing dancing. Poor Jenkins was swaying about with his arms to his sides and his eyes closed. He was still upright. Brown wound up his introduced vaudeville specialty with a cack walk, and then settled down to the serious business of the evening. Winking maliciously to his shouting followers he took a position about three paces from Jenkins. He bounded into the air like a wild beast and with a terrific rush he swung his right for his helpless victim's jaw. Unfortunately for Brown, he ducked his head, and he delivered what was to be the last blow in the fight. The fates were kind to Jenkins. Just as Brown hurled himself through the air the groggy, beaten center unconsciously staggered out of Brown's way. Brown plunged across the ring, past Jenkins and his woolly pate hit full on one of the cedar posts with a force that well nigh wrecked the ring. He rolled over on his back and lay there for some time, his head stretched out unconscious. He had knocked himself out, but Jenkins was the last one in the building to learn that he had won. Jenkins has never since, as far as I know, had any pugilistic aspirations, although in this his only fight, he was a victor. The story of the trouble of stakeholders in this battle is another chapter, and I have no doubt the police could tell an interesting sequel of how the place was raided and Brown's head was not the only one broken."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Delegates to the Republican county convention were elected in all the districts of the city and county last night. In some districts there were spirited contests for supremacy and while it is problematical which side won, it is quite generally conceded that the honors went to those who are believed to be favorable to the election of Hon.
